

Marsh's Risk Consulting Practice

In Asia's environment of accelerating change, fierce competition, expanding opportunities, and convergence of technology, the complexity of risks that organisations confront assumes greater significance. The impact of risk on businesses today is more pervasive and challenging than ever before.

Hence, effective risk control should be integrated into management systems, address the full scope of risks facing organisations, and ensure that everyone has accountability for managing risk.

Marsh has long been an acknowledged leader in the risk management field, and a high standard of service is provided throughout the Asian region, where it has been involved in some of the largest projects undertaken in recent years.

Marsh's Risk Consulting Practice is the risk management consulting business unit of Marsh in Asia. Its broad range of services are aligned to assist clients in developing risk strategies that support their organisational objectives. This includes identifying and evaluating risks, as well as providing clients with innovative, customised, and effective risk management strategies and solutions that improve corporate performance and productivity, as well as lower costs.

These services support the full continuum of risk management – from strategy and planning to analysis and design – through to a broad range of specialist solutions that reduce risk, and help preserve the value of clients' organisations.

The major products and services provided by Marsh's Risk Consulting Practice in Asia include:
